A large St. Bernard dog owned by Abraham Zimmerman, who conducts a hotel and saloon near the National Military Home at Marion, Ind., has attracted a great deal of attention recently by his marvelous con-

The hotel is situated in an out-of-the-way place surrounded by woods about one mile from the headquarters of the home. The place is frequented by veterans who congregate there to drink and spend their time. To reach the place it is necessary to cross the tracks of the Pennsylvania ratiroad. At the tracks of the Fennsylvania ranfoad. At this point a number of veterans have been killed, who were returning to the home in an intoxicated condition. Others have been found dead in the woods nearby, where they nad wandered in a drunken stupor and then died from exposure.

It seems that the dog has assumed the esponsibility of taking care of the veterans that frequent the place and become intoxi-cated. He begins to manifest an interest in an old soldier as soon as the veteran shows the effects of too much liquor, and instinctively commences to keep a watch on him and his movements. When the veteran starts for home the dog accompanies him to the railroad crossing and runs in advance to see if a train is approaching. If one is in sight he returns to his intoxicated charge and places himself in front of the veteran and by barking notifies the soldier of the approaching danger. If the man then attempts to approach the railroad track the dog will seize him by the clothing and prevent him from doing so. After the train has passed he will then pilot him across the tracks, then sit and watch him until he has entered the home grounds before returning to the hotel to look after another charge.

The big fellow was making his usual rounds of inspection in the woods Friday when he found an old veteran who was lying in the snow in an unconscious condi-tion. He attempted to arouse him by pull-ing at his garments; failing in this he went to the hotel, where he attracted the attento the hotel, where he attracted the attention of the landlord and a number of veterans by his queer actions. They followed him to the woods, where they found the unconscious man almost frozen. The dog has positively saved the lives of four veterans in the last month. His actions are purely from instinct, as he has never been trained to do the work. He takes

Progress is being made in the matter of the condemnation of land for the opening of certain streets. The jury has still under consideration the 16th street extension, while the cases in court are those relative to New Hampshire avenue, Sherman avenue, Howard avenue and Staughton street. Those yet to be taken up in court relate to the opening of Pennsylvania avenue east, 5th street and Eckington place. The street cases which have been finally disposed of include 11th, 19th, 20th, 22d, S and Decatur streets. The important bearing which the extension of streets has upon the material interests of the city is well known, and the progress made in the work of securing the necessary land for the right of way is of consequence, as in several of the cases it is likely that many improvements will follow the opening up of these direct lines of communication with the center of population. For this and other reasons there is a Demand for Apartment Houses. It is regarded as probable that the feature of the coming building season will be the erection of apartment houses. It was believed by some that the supply of buildings of this class had about reached its limit, and that there would come a let up in the activity in that particular direction. However, those who held that opinion reckoned without an adequate idea, in the first place, of what is apparently the demand of the market, and, in the second place, of the variety that is possible in these structures. Of course, the thought that is usually suggested when an apartment house is mentioned is a building of large size, capa-ble of housing a great many families. built here and others are to be erected during the present season, yet there is another class that is by no means pretentious and that would not be picked out as apartment houses unless as the result of rather close spection. Buildings of this kind are much like the average three or four-story housein fact, may be about the same width and depth, but instead of being arranged for toil of going up and down stairs and caring for a large number of rooms.

In a flat the kitchen is on the same floor with the other rooms, so that there is economy of space in moving about and in many of the details of the housekeeping. In fact, some persons who claim to have given attention to the subject of the apartment house aspect of modern life have reached the conclusion that the demand for this class of dwellings arises from the fail-

Houses Built for Sale. In other words, it is thought that the apartment house simplifies modern domestic life. Whatever may be the explanation of this form of living, there is no question that the demand is substantial enough, and also MATTERS OF INTEREST | that a large percentage of the money that would otherwise be invested in the erection of houses is going into this form of building. For some years past the custom that formerly prevailed here so generally of people building their own houses has been abandoned, except in cases of large and expensive houses. When a man, or a woman, either, for that matter, wants a home nowadays, instead of seeking out a lot and then deter-mining a plan for a house and arranging for its construction, he starts out to look about the city in much the same fashion as if he wanted to rent a house, and when he finds a residence that suits him he makes an offer for it. There are men who make it their business to supply this demand, and the result is that rows of houses are built for sale in all parts of the city.

This change in the methods of securing homes seems to suit all the parties con-cerned, and from the standpoint of the city it has its advantages, for the reason, it is said, that the houses now built are more elaborate and have more conveniences than was the case of those erected several years ago. It follows also that they cost more, but it seems that people are able to buy them. Probably larger incomes have deal of interest shown by property something to do with that. It is said by those who are in a position to know that while twenty years ago a man would be satisfied with a house that cost him $2,000 or $2,500, nowadays he pays $4,000 or $5,000.

Summer Man Less Gorgeous. From the New York Sun.

Summer shirt patterns have lost the splendor that distinguished them the last season, and the neglige shirt is not going to be nearly so brilliant as it was. Glaring pinks and vivid blues, stripes of yellow, green and red and solid colors of barbaric tinge have all passed out of fashion.

The seeker for striking patterns is confronted by sober bile and white or pink and white stripes, and nothing more glaring is to be had from the establishments that consider themselves foremost in matters of style. This condition is a reaction from the debauch of color that men's sum-mer dress has displayed for the past three or four summers. Variety this year will be found only in the use of the dark buttons which contrast with the colors of the shirts and afford some picturesquesness.

There have been no changes this summer There have been no changes this summer in the way of making the summer shirts. The best of them will have the broad pleats down the front. Some in plain white are relieved by a narrow stretch of hemstitching that adds variety and considerations.
